Every nation and every country has its own customs and traditions. In Britain traditions play a more important part in the life of the people than in other countries.

Englishmen are proud of their traditions and carefully keep them alive. For example, we seldom speak about the weather. If we do, it usually means we have no topics to discuss. In England if you don't speak about the weather the English are surprised and think that you are dull.

Most English love gardens. Growing roses is one of the most popular hobbies. They usually prefer a house with a fireplace and a garden to a flat in a modern house with central heating.

People from Europe began to settle in America many years ago. The first English colonists landed there in the late sixteenth century. They landed in the south of what is now the United States of America. But those people didn't like living in America and they went back to England.

Then another group of families left England in 1620 to cross the Atlantic Ocean and make a home in America. These people could not stay in England any more because of their religion.

When they got off the ship they found a land covered with forests. There were many trees in the forests. So they lost no time in building houses. Until the houses were built, everyone lived on the ship.

After a long voyage in a ship called the "Mayflower" they landed in America. They named that land New England. The emigrants who landed from the "Mayflower" on the America coast became the founders of the United States of America.

The Internet was invented in the late 1960s by the US Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency. In 1969, there was a network of just four mainframe computers. A mainframe computer is a large, powerful computer, shared by many users. The idea of the electronic mailbox was born when users looked for a way to talk to each other electronically. By 1984, the Internet had begun to develop into the form we know today. Electronic mail is much faster than traditional mail, because once the message is typed out; it arrives in the electronic mail box of the recipient within minutes. It's better to use e-mail to contact friends rather than phone them, because e-mail is cheaper for long distances than the phone. People can share their interests through the Internet and it makes it very easy to exchange ideas and information.

The fax machine is a very convenient aid to contact companies and friends because messages are transmitted immediately. Fax machines work like photocopiers. They make a copy of a document and then send it down a telephone line to another fax machine. In this way they can send and receive information from each other.
